

FAMU DRS Strike of Excellence Blended Program GradPoint® Teacher Expectation

The FAMU DRS Online Program will provide students with an integrated learning experience which blends both face-to-face and online instruction expected to catapult students to the next level. The successfulness of the Online Program is dependent large on the support, management, and interaction provided to students from instructors. As a course instructor, it is anticipated that you will...

- Provide students with the course outline and schedule of deadlines in a timely manner;
- Use appropriate course materials, resources, and activities aligned to state standards, objectives, and outcomes;
- Provide adequate and meaningful feedback on assignments and assessments and remediate as appropriate;
- Post or distribute grading rubrics for non-objective tests and assignments to ensure students awareness of grading criteria.
- Monitor assignment submissions, notify students of missed and/or upcoming deadlines, and making course progress adjustments where and when necessary.
- Commit to quality student-centered teaching which engages students in collaborative activities such as presentations, group projects, and class discussions;
- Use structured activities for the effective construction of knowledge;
- Use a variety of strategies and instructional technology to enhance online learning;
- Emphasize importance of good study skills throughout course;
- Share a set of clear expectations for your students to ensure that students understand what is required for them to succeed in a blended environment;
- Maintain consistent and clear communication with students throughout the course;
- Attend scheduled professional development designed to support instructors in utilizing resources and implementing researched-based instructional practices and strategies.
